Lauren Pagliuca, 11, of Bolton, had quite an inventory of slime on display at Lauren's Slime Boutique over the last week. The effort has raised more than $1,900 for the Hospital for Sick Children.

Brisk slime sales are going to help Sick Kids

By Bill Rea

There's no denying slime sells, and sometimes for a good cause. Bolton resident Lauren Pagliuca, 11, has been selling slime to raise money for the Hospital for Sick Children. As of Saturday, her efforts had passed the $1,900 mark in sales.

The Grade 6 student at Allan Drive Middle School said she did pretty well in sales there.

"It's really trendy at my school," she remarked.

Lauren's Slime Boutique was running for more than a week, ending Saturday, at her mother's spa. Cindy Chiovitti owns Serenity Spa and Laser in Woodbridge. The inventory included Easter baskets and Blizzards Poops, all filled with slime. And it was available in a variety of colours, in large and small containers.

Lauren became a patient at the hospital in Toronto about four years ago to address a problem with her eyes. Things have improved since then, but she still has to go there once a year to have things checked.

"I really felt bad for all those people who can't get out of the hospital," she said, explaining why she wants to raise money for the facility.

"Our visits to Sick Kids were very humbling experiences," her mother stated, "to have seen the physical and emotional pain that many of the children have had to endure."

She added Lauren decided she wanted to help out at their last visit to the hospital, coming up with the idea of making slime, which is very popular with kids these days.

Provincial candidates largely negative on budget

By Bill Rea

The Provincial budget brought down last Wednesday by Finance Minister Charles Sousa offered lots of promised spending, along with some people paying more in taxes to cover it.

And there's still the promise of a $6.7 billion deficit this year.

While the Liberals seem pleased with what has been announced, other parties are not as enthused.

"That could not have been more of a pre-election budget," Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones commented the following day.

But Bob Gordanier, Dufferin-Caledon Liberal candidate in the coming election, was more positive.

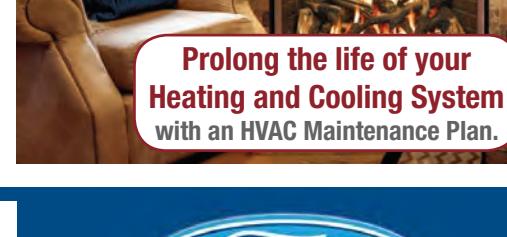

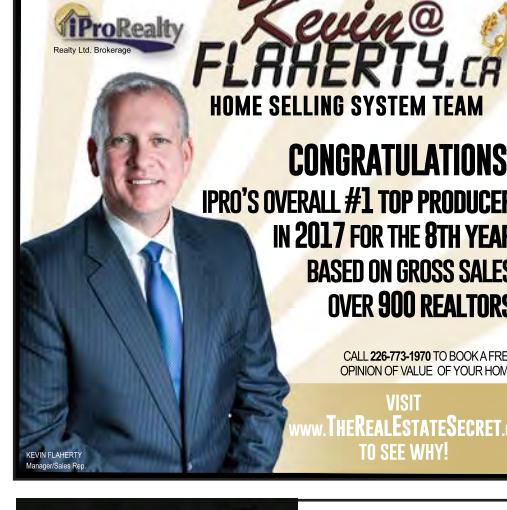

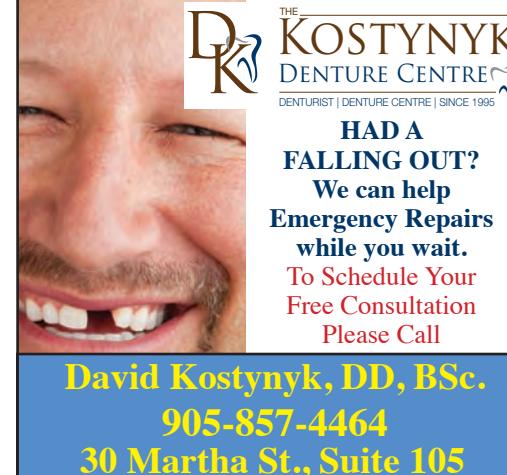

"I didn't think it was too bad a budget," he told the Citizen.

The budget includes significant new investments in health care, child care, home care and mental initiatives that make life more affordable and provide more financial security during a time of rapid economic change.

The government, in a news release issued last Wednesday, stated Ontario's economy is getting stronger, with the unemployment rate at its lowest level in almost 20 years. But there is also concern about the rising cost of living and the difficult

Green Party leader Mike Schreiner outlines platform in visit to riding

By Mike Pickford

Mike Schreiner, leader of the Green Party of Ontario, made Orangeville the final stop on his week-long, province-wide tour last week, telling local residents they can make a "real difference" by voting Green in the upcoming provincial election.

Schreiner was joined by local Green candidate Laura Campbell at Pia's on Broadway last Thursday, where he shared details of his party's platform ahead of the June 7 vote. As a part of his Green Vision tour, Schreiner spent time in 20 communities over nine days discussing such issues as the well-documented minimum wage increase, affordable housing and the future of fossil fuels in Ontario.

"It's been a very worthwhile trip," Schreiner said of his tour. "The reception we've been receiving in communities across southern and northern Ontario is fantastic, and I think part of the reason for that is people are sick and tired of the status quo at Queen's Park."

"There's a lot of discontent with the three main parties and I get the sense that voters are looking for something new, something different," he added. "My job has been to inform people that the only way to change that status quo is to vote for a new party with a new vision. I can talk as much as I want about what the Green Party of Ontario is capable of doing, but people need only look towards elected Greens across Canada and, frankly, across the world, to see that we are delivering on change, focused on putting people first and showing the public that politics can be done differently."

Number one on the Green Party's plan for Ontario is rolling out a new jobs strategy that Schreiner believes is unrivalled by any other party in the province. Focusing on what he described as "new jobs," Schreiner is looking to support local businesses and invest in 21st century industry — a far cry, he said, from what both the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives have in mind.

"The new leader of the PC party is trying to defend old jobs that have mostly disappeared in recent times, while the NDP and Liberals are just sitting by not really saying or doing much at all," Schreiner said. "They're all focused on trying to save yesterday's economy. We would revitalize the manufacturing sector, utilizing clean technology and promoting clean innovation. Ushering in new innovation that, in turn, will create new jobs for the people of this province."

Schreiner derided the Liberal government's plan to invest heavily in rebuilding nuclear facilities, notably the Darlington Generating Station in Clarington. While hydro prices have come down ahead of the June 7 vote, Schreiner estimated costs will skyrocket in the coming years.

"We are the only party that has the courage to say no to tripling electricity prices over the next decade. We don't want to rebuild our outdated, overpriced nuclear facilities," Mr. Schreiner said.

Instead, he would like to see the government reach out to Quebec to purchase what he described as "cheap, green water power" for approximately one third of the projected price of electricity.

Six months on from her nomination to serve as the Green candidate in Dufferin-Caledon, Campbell said she's quickly gotten up to speed with the issues affecting many residents locally. She spoke about the constituency's housing market, which has been bloated in recent years thanks largely to outside investment.

"We, as a party, have a plan in place to bring more access to affordable housing both across the province and right here in Dufferin-Caledon," Campbell said. "We, as a riding, have some of Canada's wealthiest people, yet there are others who had to wait six years to get into public housing. That's a reality here."

"There are more people on a waiting list for public housing than there are total units available," she added. "When we think Ontario is doing well, that the economy is great and people are fine, that is just burying our heads

Fire department warns everyone to be careful with burning

Caledon Fire and Emergency Services (CFES) encourages residents to use caution when burning, indoors or outdoors.

Unattended burning is the most common cause of grass fires, and burning carelessly and improperly also poses hazards.

"So far we've already seen eight grass fires in Alton, Cheltenham, Inglewood, Caledon East, Mono Mills and Palgrave districts," said Fire Chief Darryl Bailey. "These grass or open air fires can be very dangerous at this time of year when the ground is very dry. Grass fires spread extremely quickly and if there are nearby buildings, they are also at high risk of being damaged."

With spring here, grass and brush can dry out, making it very easy for fire to spread quickly and uncontrollably with the smallest breeze to nearby brush, trees and homes. Even discarding a cigarette butt improperly could start a grass fire.

Purchase a Burn Permit

CFES encourages residents to buy their burn permits online, in person at Town Hall or at Fire Administration Headquarters (6211 Old Church Rd., Caledon East).

Launched in 2014, Caledon's online burn permit application includes three permit categories:

- Open Air permits — for larger lots

(at least a half-acre in size) to burn yard waste (but not grass clippings or leaves);

- Recreational permits — for residential properties that meet minimum size/distance requirements;

- Agricultural permits intended for agricultural properties. These permits are not available online. They require an inspection, which must be arranged in advance.

Check the Fire Hazard Rating before burning any materials. This rating is evaluated and changed considering outdoor conditions and Provincial assessments, and is enforced to ensure the safety of all residents.

To apply for a burn permit or to check the Fire Hazard Rating, visit caledon.ca/burnpermits

For general fire safety information about smoke alarms, carbon monoxide alarms, home escape planning and safe burn practices, visit caledon.ca/fire

4 break-ins in one day in Bolton

March 23 was a busy day for Caledon OPP officers investigating break-ins.

Police report four such incidents that day in the Bolton area.

The first was reported at 1:28 p.m., with police responding to a home on Ellwood Drive West. A resident of the home observed the front door of the house had been smashed in. In this incident, the residence was ransacked and jewelry was reported stolen.

About four minutes later, officers responded to a residence on Rolling Hills Lane. In this case, the home owner observed the front door had been kicked in. However, it was determined that no items were missing from the home.

The next one was reported at 2:17 p.m., with police being sent to a residence on Natureway Court. In this incident, entry was believed to be through an insecure rear deck door, although foot prints were observed on the front door and it was visibly damaged. Further, the home was ransacked and jewelry was stolen.

Police responded to a residence on Tarquini Crescent just before 5 p.m. In this incident, the owner arrived home to find his front door had been damaged. However, the suspect(s) did not gain entry to the house.

Caledon OPP remind residents to call police at 1-888-310-1122 if they see any suspicious persons, vehicles and/or activity.

Police report receiving some video surveillance footage, along with witness statements, regarding what they believe to be a suspect vehicle.

It's a newer model white GMC Yukon. Two males were observed in this vehicle. One was believed to be the lookout and the other was committing the offences. In addition, one male was observed attending various addresses, apparently knocking on doors and asking for non-perishable food items.

Police are asking residents to review any video surveillance footage they might have from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 23 and to contact Detective Constable Steve Linton of the Community Street Crime Unit at 905-584-2241 or toll free at 1-888-310-1122 if they observe anything that may be able to assist police with these investigations.

Traffic stop leads to many charges

A Caledon OPP officer on general patrol Feb. 5 spotted a speeding vehicle.

The result was two residents of Guelph ended up facing a number of charges.

Police said the speeding vehicle, a red 2005 Nissan Altima, was seen heading south on Highway 10, north of King Street at about 7:40 p.m.

The officer stopped the vehicle and discovered the man who was driving was under suspension. While dealing with the speed violation, the officer began an investigation under the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act which led to the arrest of both the driver and female passenger. Upon conducting a search incident to arrests, police located a firearm inside the vehicle along with drugs and several thousand dollars in cash.

As a result, the 26-year-old driver was charged with possession of a firearm or ammunition contrary to a prohibition order; transporting a firearm, weapon, prohibited device or ammunition in a careless manner; possession of a weapon for a dangerous purpose; unauthorized possession of a firearm; possession of a Schedule I substance (cocaine); possession of a Schedule II substance (cannabis marijuana) — under 30 grams; possession of a Schedule I substance for the purpose of trafficking (cocaine); and possession of the proceeds of property obtained by crime under $5,000; and possession of a Schedule I substance for the purpose of trafficking (cocaine).

Jones says voters have to decide how much debt they want

There are also plans for providing better and faster access to mental health and addictions services for more children, young people and adults, bringing the total funding to more than $17 billion over four years.

The government is proposing to create more opportunity for young people by making college and university tuition free for more than 225,000 students of all ages.

"Ontario's economy is getting stronger, businesses are creating record numbers of jobs and unemployment is at the lowest rate in almost two decades," Sousa said. "Our budget is balanced. We have a $600-million surplus. Now, we are using our strengthened fiscal position to make life more affordable for families and create new opportunity for businesses across the province."

"The 2018 Budget will include new investments in health care, child care and seniors care to help even more families get ahead," he added.

But Jones pointed out there is not much that's being offered in this fiscal year.

She was also not taken with the planned deficit.

"How far into debt and deficit do you want to go?" she asked. "That's the choice the voters have to make."

The government is also proposing to run deficits for the next six years, and Jones pointed out they have been making major announcements of promises for the last month. She didn't think the government could have had an epiphany.

"I think there's a credibility gap there," she remarked.

"Unfortunately, the Liberals' attempt to buy the votes of Ontarians with their own tax dollars will not make people forget the 15 years of scandal, waste and mismanagement," Jones said in a release issued by her office just after the budget came down. "We will not forget that the Liberals promised to balance the budget, but have now presented a $6.7 billion deficit. We will not forget the $8 billion wasted on e-health, and the $1.1 billion wasted cancelling gas plants. We will not forget that the Wynne Liberals have doubled Ontario's debt to over $325 billion."

She also said the government's going back on the promise to balance the budget is going to hurt families.

"The interest on the debt alone costs taxpayers more than $1 billion a month," she observed. "The money being spent servicing the debt crowds out our ability to fund services Ontarians need and deserve. What's more, in the last 15 years, the Liberals haven't spent a dime reducing Ontario's debt."

But Gordanier was of a different mind.

"The Liberal government's 2018-19 budget is good news for the people of Dufferin-Caledon, who deserve a government that will invest in the programs, services and infrastructure that make the biggest difference," he said in a statement he issued Monday. "In recent days, the Premier and her cabinet have promised that this budget would focus on care, and it is clear that this promise has been kept."

He also said the budget is one of the "most progressive and people-focused Ontario has ever seen," as he cited unprecedented investments in healthcare, long-term care and childcare.

Gordanier pointed out the budget commits to an additional $500 million over three years to expand broadband connectivity, increasing access to pharmacare, and providing up to $750 per year for seniors to help maintain their home.

"This builds on five years of milestone achievements for the Liberal government, including free prescription drugs for youth, much-needed investments in long-term and home care, and the largest infrastructure investment in Ontario's history," he observed. "With this budget, it is very clear where the Liberal government stands, heading into the next provincial election. The government is committed to making investments in care so everyone in Ontario can thrive,

"I think there's a credibility gap there," she remarked.

"Unfortunately, the Liberals' attempt to buy the votes of Ontarians with their own tax dollars will not make people forget the 15 years of scandal, waste and mismanagement," Jones said in a release issued by her office just after the budget came down. "We will not forget that the Liberals promised to balance the budget, but have now presented a $6.7 billion deficit. We will not forget the $8 billion wasted on e-health, and the $1.1 billion wasted cancelling gas plants. We will not forget that the Wynne Liberals have doubled Ontario's debt to over $325 billion."

The Walk of Fame is in the Trans Canada Trail Pavilion Park on the west side of Airport Road in Caledon East.

but Ontario's Conservatives have decided to take a different approach, threatening billions of dollars in across-the-board cuts that would cause deep and lasting damage in communities like ours."

Other candidates in Dufferin-Caledon weren't as enthused.

"It's fiscally irresponsible, which is something Ontario cannot afford," Green candidate Laura Campbell declared.

She added the Green party supports most of what the government is proposing, but she stressed the need to be honest about how it's all going to be paid for. She agreed more money is needed for things like hospitals, mental health and caring for seniors.

"I just don't trust the Liberals to do it in a way to keep the Province fiscally stable over the next 10 to 15 years," she remarked, adding if they had spent money on these policies over the last 15 years, they would have been in place by now.

"I thought it was bad news for the taxpayers, that now the government borrows the money we're going to have to pay back later," commented Libertarian candidate Jeff Harris.

He pointed out that interest on the debt is up to $12 billion per year, and he said the government is now borrowing to cover those payments, "which makes no financial sense at all."

Harris also said the Liberals are saying one in four Ontarians have a substance abuse or mental health problem, justifying the increase in spending.

"I think they're exaggerating numbers," he commented. "I just don't believe it."

He also cited plans to spend $5 million to promote concussion awareness, but argued there are already teachers and physical education staff on the payroll to do that.

"It shouldn't cost $5 million," he said.

Trillium Party candidate Andrew Nowell said the budget underestimates people.

"To me, it's just adding to the voter mistrust," he remarked. "I don't think it's going to work at all."

"They're not giving enough credit to the people," he added.

Some positives in budget for Mayor

By Bill Rea

There was some good items in last Wednesday's Provincial budget, as far as Mayor Allan Thompson was concerned.

But he was curious how everything is going to be paid for, suggesting the Liberal government of Premier Kathleen Wynne is trying to buy votes in the coming election.

"It's a lot of big dollars," he remarked last Wednesday evening, just hours after the budget had come down. "It's like you've gone crazy with the credit card for Christmas shopping."

The budget calls for spending $500 million over three years to expand broadband in rural and northern communities, which is something Thompson has been working on since he was elected mayor. He said it's long overdue, adding there will be a return on that investment.

Who should be next inductee on Caledon's Walk of Fame?

Nominations for the 2018 Walk of Fame are now open.

The Caledon Walk of Fame was launched in 1999 to honour past and present Caledon residents, such as filmmaker Norman Jewison, authors Farley Mowat and Robertson Davies, hockey builder Conn Smythe, broadcaster Taylor 'Hap' Parnaby and Olympic athletes Beverley and Jake Holden.

The Walk of Fame is in the Trans Canada Trail Pavilion Park on the west side of Airport Road in Caledon East.

A stone is placed in honour of each recipient during a formal Walk of Fame ceremony, held annually when there is a qualifying nominee.

Categories include arts and culture, sports and leisure, philanthropic and humanitarian causes, and the environment.

Nomination forms are available at caledon.ca/walk until May 4 at 4:30 p.m.

The 2018 honouree will be named in June with the induction ceremony scheduled for the fall.

Plenty of laughs from A Dark and Stormy Knight in Inglewood

By Bill Rea

It is possible to sometimes break a lot of conventional rules and come up with something that works very well as a result.

That's one way to describe A Dark and Stormy Knight, which is currently being presented by the Inglewood Schoolhouse Performers.

Written by Christopher Burruto, the play is set in medieval times, but there are more than enough contemporary references and breaking of the proverbial fourth wall (direct references to the fact that it is a play) to create a lot of fun-filled confusions, as well as a great many laughs.

It's bad enough that the mysterious Dark Knight is robbing people, but stealing their entire retirement portfolios as well. There's also a very brief imitation of former Toronto mayor Mel Lastman ("No-o-o-body!")

The synopsis deals with young Princess Elenora (played by Brook McAree) who is bored with living in a castle and impatient with attempts to make her behave more lady-like. She wants to be a knight, but that's not something young women aspired to in those days.

That leads to lots of suggestions that this play is a bit more contemporary. A guard outside a dungeon laments about the break-up of the Beatles. Elenora's mentor Sir Hubert (Larry Flint) gets a quick lesson in political correctness when she straightens him out about referring to her as a swordsman. She's not a swords-woman either. She's a swordsperson.

Elenora is in line for the throne, but Lord Spencer (LeeAnn Goldthorp) and Klaus (Owen Goltz) have something to say about that. But she is aided along the way by two inept guards, Ogilvy (Scott Nichols) and Dennis (Luke McAree). They alternate between jousting practice and playing Rock Paper Scissors, all while supposedly on duty. A know-it-all wizard named Sam (Mike Fortin) also helps out ("I don't need a lecture on evolution, since I invented it!" he declares at one point), and he's assisted by a mouthy troll named Iggy (Tanya Nordin).

"Of all the trolls in the world, I had to find one who had mastered sarcasm," Sam laments.

The play, directed by Kathie Maloney, is being presented at Inglewood Community Centre.

It's not a very big room for a theatre. The stage is tiny and the cast numbers 14. But in the true spirit of community theatre, they just make it work. Some of the action actually takes place among the seats, and the show sometimes gets interactive.

The costumes, designed by Audrey Partridge, come close to stealing the show, combined with the props, organized by Peggy Dickey.

A Dark and Stormy Knight runs tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Concert series ends season with Cecilia String Quartet

Caledon Chamber Concerts' final concert for the 2017-18 season takes place Friday, April 13, and will feature the award winning Cecilia String Quartet (CSQ).

CSQ has announced that it will disband after this season, so this concert will be one of the last opportunities to hear them.

Prize-winners at several international competitions, including Osaka (2008) and Bordeaux (2010), CSQ were awarded first prize at the 2010 Banff International String Quartet Competition (BISQC), where they also won the prize for the best performance of the commissioned work. Their commitment to new works can be seen through their project Celebrating Canadian Women in Music, a spotlight on a quartet of immensely talented female Canadian composers that involved four new commissions that CSQ premiered and performed across Canada, the United States and Europe.

Enthusiastic educators and mentors to the next generation of chamber musicians, CSQ members have held teaching posts at festivals, conservatories and universities across Canada and the United States, both as an ensemble and as individuals.

Deeply committed to outreach, CSQ began developing educational presentations on classical music and the string quartet while it served as String Quartet-in-Residence at San Diego State University from 2007 to 2009. Since that time, the group has conducted hundreds of educational presentations across Canada, the United States, Italy and France. The Quartet has presented for a wide variety of organizations, such as the Monarch School for Homeless Youth, Veteran's Village for Homeless Veterans, Learning Through the Arts at the RCM, and the SLAC National Accelerator Laboratory. CSQ also devolved a series of concerts called Xenia Concerts, that were customized to appeal to, and be welcoming of, children on the autism spectrum and their families.

The concert takes place at 7:30 p.m. at St. James' Anglican Church, Caledon East. Tickets are $35 for adults and $15 for students 16 years and younger and may be purchased in advance at Foster's Book Garden, Howard the Butcher and BookLore. A limited number of tickets will also be available at the door on the night of the performance.

EVENING OF BLUEGRASS AND FOLK AT CROSSCURRENTS

Churchville Park delivered a compelling performance of bluegrass, country and folk last Friday evening at CrossCurrents Cafe in Bolton. Sherry O'Connor of Tottenham, George Scott of Tottenham and Mary Bennet of King were joined by world-class mandolin player Emory Lester, originally from Virginia, and they performed before a large and enthusiastic audience, who gave them a standing ovation.

The Cecilia String Quartet will perform April 13 at the last offering of the season of the Caledon Chamber Concert Series.

'The Golden Voice' to perform at CrossCurrents

Singer-songwriter and producer Jorge Luis Rojas, professionally known as Rojitas, will be performing next Friday (April 13) at CrossCurrents Cafe in Bolton.

Known for his vocal ability in his native Cuba, where he has been dubbed "the Golden Voice," he first attracted the attention of the public in the early 1990s as vocalist for a band called Adalberto Alvarez Y Su Son, which was led by Adalberto Alvarez — one of the greatest composers in the country.

Rojitas established his own band, Rojitas Y Su Orquesta, in 1995, which was made up of 14 musicians. He composed more than 300 songs for the band and recorded 20 albums.

In 2000, Rojitas collaborated with George Martin, a producer who worked with the Beatles, and made the album Latin Tribute to The Beatles — Here comes el son.

He moved to Toronto in 2006, where he released Por Encima de la Locura, an album that consisted of Latin pop, rock, ballads and even a touch of country, sung in Spanish and English.

Rojitas is currently a member of the Latin Grammys jury and Co-Founder of the artistic and musical agency ROGA Production Music & Arts.

CrossCurrents Cafe operates out of Bolton United Church at the corner of King and Nancy Streets (use the side entrance).

Doors will open at 7:30 p.m. and the music is slated to start at 8.

Admission is free, but donations are welcome.

TOWN OF CALEDON

BUSINESS in Caledon

Little enthusiasm for statutory holiday shopping

By Bill Rea

Peel Region is looking at possibly adjusting the rules when it comes to stores opening for statutory holidays, but there doesn't seem to be much mood for change.

In fact, according to comments from people attending recent meetings in Caledon and Brampton, there's lots of support for the status quo.

Many of the people at the meetings identified themselves as working in the retail sector, and there were some who stated they had union affiliation.

"When did shopping become an essential service?" one woman at the Brampton meeting wondered.

Adrian Smith, manager of policy development and integrated planning for the Region, said Council had asked staff to look into allowing more stores to open for holidays. He stressed they were just looking at this point, and not making recommendations.

Peter Thoma, a partner with Urbanmetrics Inc. chaired both meetings. He said they had been conducting a survey regarding the Retail Business Holidays Act, and he was pleasantly surprised at the number of people who had responded (the opportunity to respond closed Feb. 28).

The Province currently allows municipalities to establish their own approach to holiday shopping. The nine statutory holidays in Ontario are New Year's Day, Family Day, Good Friday, Easter, Victoria Day, Canada Day, Labour Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Some stores are able to open these days because they apply for exemptions to the Act. Thoma said Regional Council decides on those applications. He added that process can take a lot of time.

Peel is a more diverse community today, and Thoma said there are a lot of pressures on business, from such things as online shopping.

The matter of whether to allow businesses to open for holidays has been around since the 1970s. Thoma reminded the audience in Brampton of Toronto furrier Paul Magder, who fought legal battles at the time to be allowed to open Sundays.

He also said there are no plans at the Region to change statutory holidays. He added the Region wouldn't have the authority to do that.

But he said there have been a number of changes to the Act, including the Province delegating to municipalities the authority to authorize exceptions. These exceptions are granted in the interest of things like tourism, with regions determining if a store or group of stores have an impact. There is also a requirement that a common day of pause be recognized.

Thoma said allowing exceptions can also be based on the type of store involved and what sort of merchandise it sells, as well as its size.

"There are quite a few people who are working on statutory holidays," he observed.

He also said there are only a few stores in Peel that have been granted exceptions. Garden Foods in Bolton is one of them.

Various regions have different ways of dealing with the issue. Toronto has a bylaw, he said, to govern exceptions. He added all the exceptions are downtown.

York Region had a patchwork of exceptions, so the Council there decided to let stores open when they want, but they all have to close Christmas.

One woman at the Brampton meeting said there was no public consultation when York did that.

"They did it in one fricken day," she declared.

He outlined the potential policy options facing Peel. They include maintaining the status quo; localized option, in which municipalities cite area-specific examples for the Region to consider; redefining the rules, so more store types can select specific holidays on which to open; and deregulation, so stores can open at discretion.

He took a poll of those in the room, with about 95 per cent favouring status quo.

Several people at the meeting commented on the pressures facing those who work in retail. One woman pointed out a lot of them have to hold down two jobs. A man said he didn't think it right that office and factory workers would get statutory holidays off, but retail workers wouldn't.

Thoma said to have more openings on statutory holidays, there would have to be willing businesses, willing employees and willing customers. Without all three, he said there wouldn't be much of a case for opening.

Commenting on the survey results that had been received to that point, Thoma said they had been divided into public, workers (in retail) and owners.

He said the results to that point indicated 93 per cent of respondents were aware of the Act, but might not know a lot about it. He also said about one-third from the public said they had made a retail purchase in Peel in the last year on a statutory holiday.

The results Thoma presented indicated a consistent belief that the store size and type should not be a factor as to whether it opens on a holiday.

Addressing the option of allowing stores to open at discretion, one woman argued there won't always be flexibility.

"If they're in a plaza, they don't have a choice," she said.

The survey also indicated not much enthusiasm among owners to open on holidays. Almost half of them indicated they would want to spend the time with family. There was also a desire to give staff the time off, and some didn't think there would be enough business to justify opening.

People at the Caledon meeting the previous evening expressed similar concerns.

One woman said it would be hard for people to get out to shop on holidays, because of issues like transportation and child care.

She added retail employees who resist working on holidays could face retribution, like being assigned to less desirable tasks.

Another said opening on holidays would put a burden on parents who work in retail. She said there are nine days in the year when they are guaranteed they can stay home with their kids.

It was also pointed out there will have to be store managers on duty.

"It's not volunteer," one woman remarked. "We're voluntold."

Thoma said the survey addresses a lot of the concerns that were being raised.

"We have a lot of material," he said. "It's a very dense document."

"There's no shortage of insight," he added.

The information gathered for the survey is being analysed during March and April. The plan is to send a report to Regional Council in either May or June.

Less than a month to Home Show

The Caledon Chamber of Commerce is reminding everyone that there is now less than a month to go before the "shop local" experience at this year's Caledon Spring Home Show.

It will run April 20, 21 and 22 at Don Sheardown Memorial Arena in Bolton.

This is where show-goers will discover local choices, practical advice and get great deals on a wide range of products related to home and garden living. It's free and entertaining for the whole family and it is pet friendly, so bring pets.

There will also be contests and prizes so don't miss out!

There are still spaces available at the show.

The Caledon Spring Home Show will offer two-and-a-half days to strengthen brand awareness, introduce products or services to a broad group of potential customers and in some cases observe the competition. For more information, contact the Chamber office at 905-857-7393.

Parenting is serious, except when it's time to Laugh Out Loud

It's easy to get caught up in the hustle and bustle of parenting.

But any parent will say that it is important to take some time every once in a while to relax and share a few laughs with friends.

Caledon Parent-Child Centre (CPCC) knows this, and that's why every year, they bring in a team of Yuk Yuk's finest comedians and transform The Royal Ambassador into a comedy club for an exclusive evening of hilarity.

Laugh Out Loud 2018 takes place April 20. This will be the 14th year for this well-known local event, which acts as the premier fundraiser for CPCC. It is an event which offers everyone who attends the opportunity to share in the laughter for a great cause.

Tickets are now on sale. They are $75 dollars (in advance only) and the evening will include the show, plus a lavish antipasto bar and waffle station and a silent auction with items for every pocketbook. Buy tickets at Scotiabank at Langstaff and 27, Scotiabank Bolton or at CPCC by April 18. For details, visit www.cp-cc.org

All proceeds from Laugh Out Loud benefit child development programs and family support services at CPCC. The Centre is a registered charitable organization and EarlyON Centre that provides an important blend of services that strengthen families and assist them in their critical role of raising young children. Services include child development opportunities, early identification of developmental concerns, referrals to specialized services and supports, and parenting education.

Let's review.

More than 1,400 people are making more than $3,000 per week.

The Peel District School Board has 15 superintendents, all earning around $175,000 per year.

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board has more than 770 employees making in excess of $100,000 a year and a few making over $200,000 a year.

How about the Associate Director of Instructional and Equity Support Services. I bet most people couldn't explain what that job entails, but it paid $170,000 a year.

And why does the Caledon Community Services Chief Executive Officer get paid more than our local Member of Parliament?

These are our tax dollars. Let's ask ourselves, are these salaries too high and are we really getting our money's worth?

More degradation of watershed with pit approval

The recent approval granted Lafarge to expand its operations near Caledon village (Citizen, March 22) is another example of further degradation of the upper Credit River Watershed.

Approvals are given one at a time, without regard for the impact on the overall watershed — "death by a thousand cuts."

This "expansion" will add to the existing approximately four-mile-wide by a mile-wide complex of gravel pits that have already significantly impacted surface and subsurface waterflows in the area. The Credit River Alliance, a group of environmental organizations in the Credit Watershed, have been asking Credit Valley Conservation to undertake a cumulative impact study of existing gravel operations and those designated aggregate lands in Caledon to no avail.

As one of the top-10 aggregate producers in Ontario, the Town of Caledon receives minimal compensation for the privilege and residents put up with the impact.

In future, our municipality will also be called upon to play a bigger role accommodating tourists from the neighbouring GTA and more urban development driven by Ontario's Places to Grow plan.

Someone had better figure out what the carrying capacity of the upper watershed is before too much more degradation occurs.

Let's not forget the millions of people downstream who rely on the Great Lakes for their drinking water. We can't keep fouling the vital veins of our river system.

This means all levels of government working more closely to ensure better stewardship of our watersheds before it costs us all billions of dollars to correct a situation we could have better planned for at the outset.

Rotary Club of Palgrave's Weekly Rotary Minute

By Janet Clark

Kathi Dick, district governor for District 7080, in her April newsletter wrote about this month's Rotary Theme, Maternal and Child Health.

"Every day, mothers risk their lives giving birth and millions of children die each year from treatable, preventable causes," she wrote. "At least seven million children under the age of five die each year due to malnutrition, poor health care and inadequate sanitation. To help reduce this rate, Rotary provides immunizations and antibiotics to babies, improves access to essential medical services, and supports trained health care providers for mothers and their children. Rotary's projects ensure sustainability by empowering the local community to take ownership of health care training programs."

"Maternal and Child Health Care is also recognized as one of Rotary's Six Areas of Focus," she added.

"In late February, 18 District Rotarians attended a Polio Immunization Trip to Caborca, Mexico," Dick stated. "It was a rewarding experience and a privilege to be a small part of Rotary's flagship program to end Polio in the world. It was a moving experience administering those two precious drops of the polio vaccine to the small children in Mexico."

Maternal and Child Health is near and dear to the hearts of all Palgrave Rotarians. Our recent drive for used hockey equipment for First Nations is designed to keep youth engaged and in school, and has been a huge success. We also received a report from an Amarok sponsored mother who is now learning to read and teaching five children to read along with her, with support from the Amarok Society. Our club also recently approved our third project for a small school in Venezuela, Asopica, where indigenous children from Grades 1 to 6 are provided dental and medical care, as well as education, giving them a chance to go to high school. In summary, in addition to the support for local youth and community projects, the Rotary Club of Palgrave has a number of international projects on the go.

To learn more about how we support maternal and child health initiatives both here and abroad, and to see pictures of our projects, check out our website at www.rotaryclubofpalgrave.com

Heavyweight championship boxing matches have changed a lot over the years. There was one occasion when the champ was guaranteed $30,000, while the challenger was to get 25 per cent of the total receipts. They were also both in line for one-third of picture privileges.

The first part of the fight saw the champ doing most of the scoring, but his opponent was able to take most of the punishment without flinching.

The fight, incidentally, was scheduled to last 45 rounds, but it ended in the 26th, with a new champion being crowned.

Early to bed and early to rise

Sleeping is something we all supposedly enjoy. I know I do.

But there are always complaints that we don't get enough of it. I'm in that group too.

The up side to not getting as much sleep as I would like is I very seldom oversleep.

That came in handy Sunday, when I had to get up extra early. It being Easter, there were a couple of Sunrise services that morning that needed to be covered, so I had to be up and going a lot earlier than I would normally have been on the move.

Many people look forward to being able to catch an extra hour or so of sack time Sundays. But the demands of work sometimes are involved.

So I got up at 6 Sunday morning and was out of the house and on the road without too much trouble. Indeed, I had set the clock radio to come on just before 6, just in case I needed help awakening and in hopes of inflicting minimal disturbance on my wife. As things turned out, I didn't need the radio. I was on deck without it.

It seldom matters what time I retire at night, or how tired I might be. Come 7 a.m., I am usually awake, and ready to get up. That goes for weekends, holidays or even if I'm on vacation. I just have to get up.

I usually go on the internet, looking up news outlets to find out what has been going on in the world while I was snoozing. I might have work to do, so I occupy myself with that. Sometimes I just read. But what I'm not doing is sleeping.

I really became an early riser about 20 years ago, during the time when I was living in Brampton but working in the east end of Toronto. In those days, I used to have to get up at 6 a.m. so I could be on the road shortly before 7. If I was able to maintain that timeline, I would be ahead to the rush hour crush and get to work at a time that would meet with the approval of my boss. But if I dragged my feet, even just a little, I'd wind up with the rest of the commuters, and it would add at least half an hour to my travel time, not to mention all the feelings of frustration that would get my day off to a lousy start. So as much as I might have enjoyed sleeping in, there were numerous advantages to getting myself up and into action as early as possible.

What that meant was for many years, I would get up at 6, even if I wasn't working. That went on for a couple of years after I left that company. Since I didn't have as far to drive to get to work, I didn't have to get up so early in the morning. I just did. As they say, old habits die hard.

It was not always in my nature to get up so early. Like most kids, I was something of a sleepyhead in my teens and 20s, but there were various circumstances that forced me to get up early, if not very early.

I was on the school rowing team my last three years in high school. Practice was at 6 a.m. every day (Saturdays and Sundays too). That meant getting up at 5, every day, then freezing myself numb at the side of the road, waiting for my ride. I'm sure there are easier paths to athletic glory.

Some years later, I was out of school, and slaving away at waiting tables at a local hotel while I tried to figure out what I really wanted to do with my working life.

It was mostly night work, which carried the advantage that it gave me an excuse to sleep in come the morning.

But in the three years I waited to make a living, I got used to dealing with management that liked to rearrange things, like work schedules.

The results was there was a six-month period when I was assigned to working days. That meant

I had to be at the hotel by about 6:30 a.m. to set up the room for the breakfast crowd. In order to do that, I had to get up at 5.

Those early hours went sorely against my youthful grain. I don't miss that period of my life either.

One lesson I learned about a quarter of a century ago was how detrimental an alarm clock was to the effort to get up on time. At first thought, I'll agree that doesn't make a lot of sense. But there were many mornings many years ago when the alarm would wake me from a deep sleep. I'd hit the switch to stop the noise and fall right back asleep.

I had been dealing with certain issues in those days, which, among other things, caused me some trouble sleeping. I started leaving the radio on at low volume when I went to bed, hoping the music would have a certain lulling effect. It did, but the real benefit I found was since it was the radio that was coming on first thing in the morning, instead of the alarm, it was a much more gentle experience. Rather than being jolted awake, I found the process was more gradual. It also meant that over-sleeping had become a thing of the past.

So the sleepyhead that I was in my youth has been replaced with this early-riser. For years, I have usually been the first one awake in the household, getting up at the normal time, whether I have to or not.

There are still moments of weariness in the middle of the day, and I now find myself retiring a lot earlier than I used to.

Actually, from all I've heard in my life, I think that's what you're supposed to do.

Bill C-71 – a backdoor attempt to bring back the Long-Gun Registry

The current Liberal government introduced Bill C-71, An Act to amend certain Acts and Regulations in relation to firearms, March 20.

The government claims this proposed legislation, "prioritizes public safety and effective police work, while respecting law-abiding firearms owners."

However, the reality is something entirely different, as the legislation does nothing to address violence in urban and rural communities. Canadians will see this Bill for what it truly is — a backdoor attempt to bring back the wasteful and ineffective long-gun registry.

We, the Conservative Official Opposition, believe that the safety of Canadians should be the number one priority of any government. Unfortunately, Bill C-71 has no new measures to combat gang violence in the GTA and escalating crime rates in our rural communities. The current Liberal government cannot be trusted when it comes to firearms legislation because they fail to tackle criminals who use guns to commit violent crime, while treating law-abiding firearm owners as criminals.

More specifically, the proposed legislation targets law abiding firearm owners by requiring the firearms "Registrar" to issue a "reference number" for firearm transactions, including non-restricted firearms. This can be viewed as constituting a "backdoor gun registry."

OTTAWA JOURNAL

The legislation would require commercial retailers to maintain records of their inventories and sales. As with Clause 5, these records will be kept by the "Registrar" and the transactions will include "reference numbers." Such records would be accessible to police officers if they obtain a warrant. It's also noteworthy that in Clause 7 of the Bill regarding the destruction of records, the prescribed official only "may" destroy the records; it does not say "must" or "shall."

Another point of concern with Bill C-71 is that it will repeal parts of our previous Conservative government's old Bill C-42, the Common Sense Firearms Licencing Act, that put the power to classify weapons in the hands of Parliamentarians rather than RCMP bureaucrats. However, at the same time, the proposed legislation also grandfathered in many of the Czech and Swiss rifles which are popular among sport shooters. This raises the question of how dangerous these firearms could possibly be if the current Liberal government is willing to grandfather in current owners.

Bill C-71 also requires that whenever a non-restricted firearm is transferred, the buyer must show their licence and the vendor must verify it is valid (currently the law states that it is an offence to sell firearms to anyone who does not have a licence, which in reality this means firearms vendors always check an individual's licence). The current Liberal government is being disingenuous when they try to suggest that people can easily buy firearms in Canada without a licence.

We, the Conservative Official Opposition, will never support legislation that targets law-abiding firearms owners and treats them like criminals. We will continue to fight for concrete actions to keep Canadians safe and focus our efforts on the criminal element behind firearms violence, just like we did when we were in government and passed important pieces of legislation, such as the Tackling Violent Crime Act, the Organized Crime and Protection of Justice System Participants Act, as well as support for the National Crime Prevention Strategy, and the creation of the Northern and Aboriginal Crime Prevention Fund, the Youth Justice Fund and the Youth Gang Prevention Fund.

Bill C-71 does nothing to address violence in urban and rural communities. It amounts to the current Liberal government using a federal registrar to keep records on law-abiding firearms owners. Registrars keep registries. Canadians can easily see this is the current government's attempt at resurrecting the wasteful and ineffective long-gun registry. We will continue to stand up for law-abiding Canadians and for measures that actually address the criminal element behind firearms violence.

It was the Liberals' last budget

FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Sylvia Jones
MPP Dufferin-Caledon

The Liberal government released their last budget before the upcoming June general election March 26.

In the budget, the government continues their 15 years of reckless spending which has increased Ontario's debt to a shocking $325 billion this year.

The Liberals' budget broke a crucial promise. Last year, the Liberals promised to balance the budget, but this year they have announced that they will have a substantial deficit, as much as $8 billion. This is a flip-flop by the government.

Servicing interest on the debt is costing Ontarians more than $1 billion per month. Since forming a government in 2003, budget in the future, they provide no plan of how they will make that happen. After the Liberals broke their initial promise to balance the budget, it is fair to be skeptical of any new promises for future balance.

It is clear that the Liberals have no concern about the finances of the Province, but are instead solely focused on themselves and making last-ditch promises to stay in power and increasing the debt even further. Ontario is the most indebted province or state in the world. Raising the debt will only limit the ability of our government to make the needed investments in things like health care and education, because more and more of your money is being spent paying the interest on the Liberal government's debt.

For years, my Progressive Conservative Caucus colleagues and I have said that the government doesn't have a revenue problem, but a spending problem. This is confirmed in the independent officer of the legislature, the Financial Accountability Officer (FAO)'s, 2017 report. According to the FAO, they expect the Ontario's debt-to-GDP ratio to rise to 63 per cent. Importantly, this projection was before the Liberals announced that they would run a deficit. So we can expect this figure to be even higher in the FAO's next budget outlook report. To quote the FAO, "if the Province delays raising revenue or reducing spending, Ontario's net debt will continue to accumulate, making it costlier to meet the Province's fiscal targets."

With no plan to change the course, this poses a serious long-term risk to our ability to afford the services we need. Ontarians cannot afford the latest Liberal budget. Ontarians can do better and under a Doug Ford Progressive Conservative government, we will do better.

Trail Association AGM April 11

A passionate and tireless advocate for the environment will be the guest speaker at the April 11 annual general meeting of the Caledon Chapter of the Humber Valley Heritage Trail Association.

Bob Barnett is the executive director of the Escarpment Biosphere Conservancy, a non-profit organization whose mission is to protect properties along the Niagara Escarpment through conservation easement agreements and/or purchases.

A Toronto architect, Barnett helped form the conservancy in 1997 which now protects a property once a month. Those properties now reach to Lake Huron and include the Saugeen Valley and the far end of Manitoulin Island. The conservancy also builds trails to encourage the public to explore nature and has built four trails between Caledon and Creemore and a dozen on the island.

The meeting will be in the library of Humberview Secondary School, 135 Kingsview Dr., in Bolton. The AGM will include the election of the chapter's 2018/19 executive and updates on the trail group's projects and initiatives during the past year.

Doors will open at 7 p.m., with the meeting starting at 7:30. Everyone is welcome.

in the sand to the real issues."

Schreiner said he's spoken to hundreds of seniors and young Canadians who are having trouble finding traction in the current housing market. He spoke to the Citizen about a multi-level strategy that he believes would bring affordable housing to most of the province.

"We would adopt international best practices for housing development," he said. "One of those practices would require any new development application, whether it be for rental units, town homes or housing subdivisions, to designate at least 20 per cent of all properties as affordable units. That's a low-cost way for government to quickly ramp up the availability of affordable homes for the people of Ontario."

In closing, both Schreiner and Campbell spoke about the pressing need for change at Queen's Park. The local candidate noted that local residents were "very frustrated" with the leadership displayed by Premier Kathleen Wynne over the past few years, while also expressing their concern over new PC leader Doug Ford.

"I sense a lot of excitement in Dufferin-Caledon about the possibility of electing a Green MPP — that's been really, really refreshing for me," Campbell said. "There's a strong group of residents in this riding who are excited to vote Green in this upcoming election."

While Schreiner acknowledged it will be difficult to break the PCs' hold on Dufferin-Caledon, he earmarked the local riding as one of only a few across the province where he has genuine hope of seeing a breakthrough.

"Our main hope in this election is to elect our first MPP," he observed. "I think we're well-positioned to do that in Guelph, but we have a few other ridings we feel very competitive in and, if votes swing our way, we could potentially win as well."

Speeder stopped on north side of town

A 34-year-old man from Teeswater was charged Feb. 20 after Caledon OPP stopped a vehicle going excessively fast on Highway 9, near Centreville Creek Road.

Caledon OPP reports an officer from the Traffic Unit was conducting radar enforcement in the area at about 9:40 a.m. when he saw a black 2010 Dodge Caravan travelling at high speed, and determined it was going 139 km/h in a posted 80 zone.

The man was charged with racing a motor vehicle. His licence was suspended for seven days and the vehicle was impounded for seven days.

"Dufferin-Caledon is one of those ridings," he added. "We want to have a strong showing here, if not for this election, then definitely for the next one."

(With that being said), I think Laura has a very good chance of winning this time, thanks to the dissatisfaction in the new PC leader and the Wynne government."

More than a dozen local residents welcomed Green Party leader Mike Schreiner (middle) to Orangeville last Thursday. He spoke of the need to invest in 21st century job creation and providing affordable housing for Ontario residents. He is seen here with local Green Party President Ian McGugan and Dufferin-Caledon Green candidate Laura Campbell.

Caledon's Barron signs with NHL's Avalanche

By Jake Courtepatte

Rarely is a seventh-round pick in the NHL Entry Draft offered an NHL contract.

Most are simply signed for depth, in the rare hope that they may develop talent enough for the elite level of hockey the NHL provides.

Yet Caledon's Travis Barron, a six foot one inch, 201-pound left winger who grew up in Belfountain, inked his way into an entry-level deal Friday.

Drafted as the Colorado Avalanche's final pick of the 2016 NHL Entry Draft, the Avalanche had until this June's draft to sign Barron, opting to put pen to paper early with several other NHL clubs interested in the breakout leader.

"It's a first contract, but people always say the second or third contracts are always the toughest ones to get," said Barron, 19. "But it's been a long road since I was drafted and it's a lot of what I have been thinking about how to get it done."

"I suppose it's a rare contract for a seventh-rounder, but it's nice to finally get it off my back," he added.

Cutting his teeth with the Toronto Jr. Canadiens minor program before a brief stint with the OJHL's Aurora Tigers, Barron was the third-overall pick in the OHL's 2014 draft.

Barron quickly became a piece of the Ottawa 67s penalty kill while also providing offensive support, a two-way style of play that translates well at the pro level.

He topped his 21-point rookie season with the 67s with a 13-goal, 24-assist performance in his sophomore year, leading the team in scoring in a short-lived playoff run.

Barron, who said he feels like "he has come a long way as a player and a person" since his draft day almost two years ago, was handed the captaincy after the 2015-16 season.

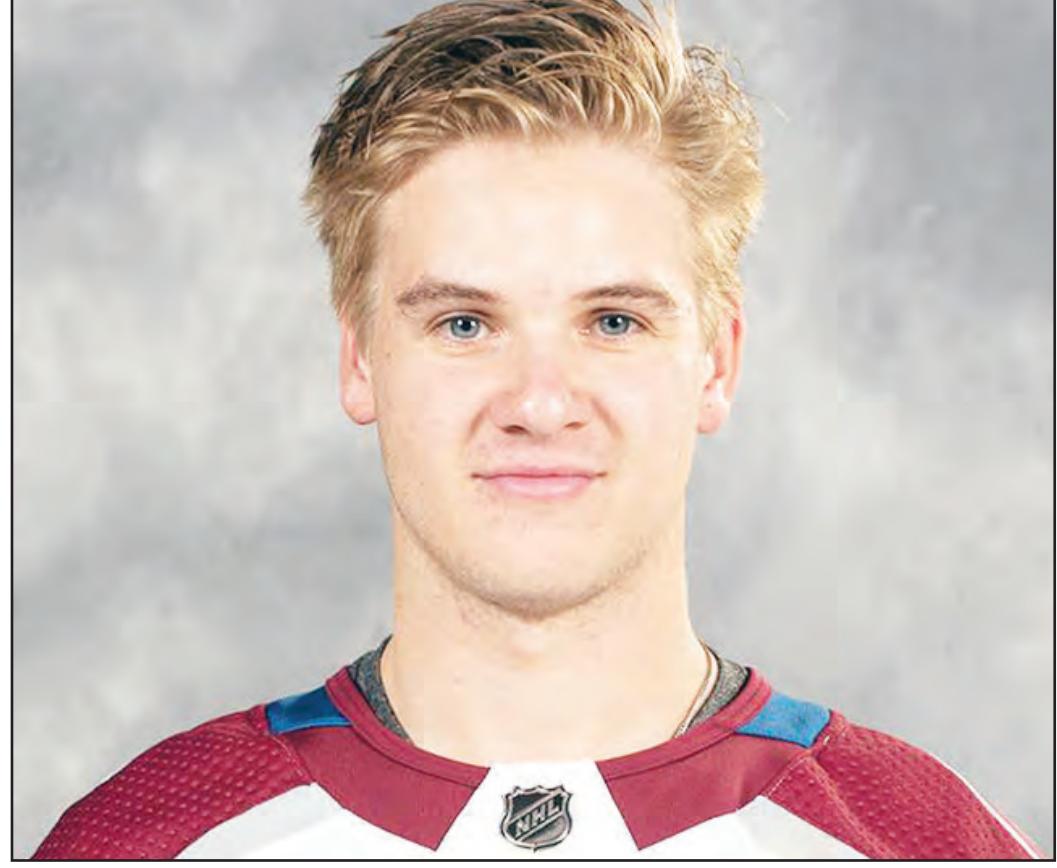

While his first year in the driver's seat remained stagnant in terms of point production, Barron jumped out the gates this season with 22 points in his first 23 OHL games, enough to earn the seventh-round pick a rare invite to the big club's camp.

"A lot of it has been confidence," Barron told the Avalanche-affiliated fan site MileHighHockey at the time. "But at the same time my physical strength has skyrocketed, I had a real big summer in regards to off ice training, and that's a huge credit for that. You treat yourself like a pro and that's what you get."

His point production continued to improve with the experience, finishing the 2017-18 OHL season with a career-high 57 points, good for third on the team.

With the 67s bounced in the first round of the OHL playoffs by the Hamilton Bulldogs in five games, Barron could expect to join Colorado's AHL-affiliate San Antonio Rampage as early as this week.

Caledon's Travis Barron signed his first NHL contract with the Colorado Avalanche last week.

Predator and Brewers to battle for Sunday night championship

The coming Saturday night will see the crowning of the champions in the Sunday Night Hockey League.

The Inside Out Family Chiropractic Predators will battle the Caledon Hills Brewing Co. Brewers for all the marbles, starting at 6:30 p.m. at Don Sheardown Memorial Arena in Bolton.

The Predators advanced to the finals Saturday night with a 5-1 victory over the Pommies Cider Co. Wild. The Brewers needed overtime to get past the St. Louis Bar and Grill Wings by a 3-2 count.

It was something of an upset for the Predators to advance, as they finished fourth in the post-season round robin, while the Wild were in first.

The round robins ended with the Ken's Lawnmower Repairs Blades in fifth place, followed by the Mr. Handyman Ice Hogs, Glen Eagle Golf Club Griffins and the Ainsley Fire Protection Fire.

Semifinals

Predators 5,

Wild 1

The first semifinal game Predators pull the upset win over the Wild.

The Wild didn't lose a game in the Faceoff to fight cancer

The annual Faceoff to Fight Cervical Cancer will be taking place this Saturday night (April 7).

We Are Creative Inc. and Sports Marketing All Stars are back to present another fun night of double-header hockey action for the Bolton community at Don Sheardown Memorial Arena, while raising money and awareness for cervical cancer!

The girls vs. guys game is slated to start at 7:30 p.m., after the champions of the Sunday Night Hockey League are presented the Callaghan Cup. It will feature the CWHL's Markham Thunder, fresh off their Clarkson Cup championship win, against the Sunday Night Hockey League All Stars. Following the game is an end-of-season celebration, sponsored by Pommies Cider Co. and Caledon Hills Brewing.

Tickets are $10 for adults, and $5 for youngsters aged four to 10.

For ticket information, go to faceofftofight.ca or go to We Are Creative at 26 McEwan Dr. W., unit 2.

round robin going 4-0-3, while the Predators were 4-2-1, but the Predators stepped it up a notch and the Wild couldn't get anything going and ended up losing.

Predator power came from Fab Iafano from Mike Desario, Darren Jones from Cam Coulter, Jones from Coulter and Austin Brown, Mike O'Brien from Coulter, and Coulter (unassisted). The Wild's lone marksman was Mitch Merante from Steve Whitten and Sean Maizurkiewicz.

Brewers 3, Wings 2

The other match that evening had the Brewers clip the Wings.

The teams were knotted at nil at the end of the first period. By the end of the second, it looked like lights out for the Brewers as Derek Marciano from Eric Webster and Daniel Hamlett from Derek Cleary put the Wings up 2-0. The third saw the Brewers dig deep and get a pair from Jody Spagnoli helped by Kevin Bowen, Steve Nicoloff and Brandon Scott, forcing overtime.

The first period of overtime solved nothing as both teams had chances and the goalies stood tall. The second overtime frame saw Scott from Joe Doan net the winner for the Brewers with only 17 seconds left to give them the chance to play for the Callaghan Cup.

March 25

The final evening of round-robin play some four teams packing it in for the season, despite some close games.

Predators 3, Blades 3

The first game of the night saw neither team able to best the other on the score board, but the Blades were able to take three points from the Predators.

One point is awarded for winning a period in round-robins, two points for winning the game and if a period is tied, each team gets half a point.

The Blades went into the match well within striking distance of a semifinal spot, but the three points wasn't enough for them to move on, and it gave the Predators enough to get into the semis in fourth.

Blade bin bulgers were Daryll Simpson from Scott Drouillard, Bogdan Rapan from Kevin Wigner, and Simpson from Dan Maggio. Predators' power was from Darren Jones with the hat-trick, helped by Kevin Christie and Craig Webster.

Register for youth volunteer program

Registration for Credit Valley Conservation's (CVC) popular Conservation Youth Corps (CYC) program is now open.

High school students can earn up to 35 volunteer hours in one week this summer by participating in environmental stewardship activities. Space is limited, so students are encouraged to sign up early.

"The program is a great way for students to connect with nature, learn and take action in their community," said Adam Wilford, acting senior coordinator of CYC. "This is an opportunity to gain valuable experience, and develop communication and leadership skills."

The CYC summer program is open to high school students in the Credit River Watershed, from Orangeville to Mississauga. Participants volunteer in groups of seven with CVC staff for one week of the summer. The first volunteer day consists of an orientation session at Terra Cotta Conservation Area. Remaining days are spent completing restoration and ecological projects.

Each year, approximately 250 students work on a range of activities that benefit nature, while earning up to 35 of the 40 volunteer hours needed to graduate high school. Activities include tree planting, managing invasive species, aquatic and terrestrial monitoring, fish and wildlife habitat construction, community gardening, trail maintenance and more.

The CYC program celebrated its 11th year last summer. Nearly 2,400 students have joined the week-long summer program since 2006 and have contributed 76,400 hours of service. Through partnerships with landowners and supporters, these students planted more than 25,300 trees to help fight climate change. Students have also removed more than 9,000 individual invasive species like garlic mustard, honeysuckle and buckthorn. This work has taken place on 160 different properties.

Volunteers have an opportunity to learn about the environment through meaningful experiences, explore different areas of the Credit River Watershed and meet new people. The CYC summer program also looks impressive on a resume, and on college and university applications.

All training and tools are provided.

For more information and to register, visit cvc.ca/cyc or call CVC at 905-670-1615 or toll free at 1-800-668-5557. Applications will be accepted through CYC's online process.

Fines Ford 9, Grit 5

Bret Smith had the hot hand for Fines with four goals, but there was a long line of multi-point efforts right behind him.

Lucas and team rep Ted Callighen each bagged three assists. Foley was switched to the wing beside Smith in a canny move by Callighen and he struck for two goals to give that line a total of six. Dom D'Orazio had a goal and an assist. Dave Armstrong and Alex Dorosh scored the other goals. Luch Pinarello had two assists and Palumbo had one.

Curcio powered Grit with three goals, while Freitag managed three assists.

Drouillard and John Crossley scored the other goals. Fantin set up two goals with David Shoalts, Sabaziotis and John Pittsabotis all getting one helper.

Yale 4, Heart Lake 2

Bernie Tisdale and Heenan led the way for Yale with a goal and two assists each.

Robert Masutti and Dan Tasson both had one of each. Gazzolla was in brackets on two goals.

Kuchar and Tim Sinclair handled all of the Heart Lake offence with a goal and an assist apiece.

Lots of fun at Easter Round Up at Teen Ranch

The grounds at Teen Ranch on Highway 10 were packed Saturday for the annual Easter Round Up. Young folks stampeded into the field in one of a number of Easter egg hunts that were held during the day. There are many interesting animals at Teen Ranch, and Saturday offered a great opportunity to meet some of them. Helena Mazz was holding this lamb for Alessia and Sofia Kroeplin, 8, of Palgrave to make friends with. There was also lots of candy being handed out by the Easter Bunny.

Library celebrates 10-years of Young Reels Film Festival

For 10 years, Caledon Public Library (CPL) has successfully hosted the Young Reels Film Festival.

It's a platform to showcase short films from local teens, offering them a chance to win monetary prizes and gain recognition for their talent and hard work.

As this important milestone approaches, CPL welcomes all past participants and winners to attend the festival and to share their words of wisdom with the next generation of creators.

CPL's Young Reels Film Festival is a model for community engagement, a celebration of youth culture, and a showcase for the richness and diversity of a new generation of filmmakers. The films represent the voice of youth, sharing their vision, covering all topics, from important public service messages, to hilarious and uplifting.

"This year is set to be our most exciting yet," according to Laura Groe, manager of Youth Services for CPL. "Over the past 10 years, we have been honoured to provide the opportunity for young artists to share their work, often providing the catalyst for them to pursue careers in the film industry. We are looking forward to seeing past and present participants come together to appreciate the art of film."

The festival will take place April 10 at the Albion-Bolton branch of CPL. Doors will open at 6 p.m., with film screenings starting at 7. There will be a party with refreshments to follow. Friends, family and the public are welcome to attend, with tickets being sold for $10 at the door. For more information on the Young Reels Film Festival, and to see the work of past participants, visit the library website at www.caledonlibrary.on.ca

Wilson, Jeffrey Alexander Robert

November 18, 1965 –

March 20, 2018

Jeff died at home in Hornings Mills, Ontario, on March 20 with Sarah, Alex, and Theo by his side, looking out at the view he has loved for over 20 years.

Jeff was the much loved husband, partner, and best friend of Sarah Harrison for 32 years, and the very proud father of Alex and Theo. He was born in Duncan, BC, to Doris and Robert (2015), the youngest brother of Rick (Jill, Allie & Lucas), Sylvia (2012) (Ron, Zach, Rose & Jay) and Greg (Sadie & Maddie). Jeff received a Bachelor of Industrial Design in 1989 from Carleton University, and an MBA from the University of Toronto in 2006. He was self-employed all his life, and enjoyed the independence of choosing his own path.

In August, 2017, Jeff was awarded a patent for the furniture design software he had been developing for many years, and was preparing for a large scale market launch. He received his cancer diagnosis in November.

Jeff had prevailed over cancer in 1986, but upon learning he was the unlucky recipient of a second bout and with no chance of remission, he decided to forgo chemo – instead, he and Sarah went on vacation to England in November, and he was able to spend time and conversations with Alex and Theo while he was still feeling well. Family and friends visited often over the following months, bringing much welcomed conversation and sustenance – heartfelt thanks to all of you for your love and support. Thanks also to Dr. David Knox for being available when we needed you and for making it possible for Jeff to stay at home.

Cremation has taken place. Jeff will be buried in the Hornings Mills Cemetery, and as per his wishes there will be no memorial service.

Donations to the Hornings Mills Cemetery would be appreciated by Jeff and the family (c/o Township of Melancthon, 15710 Highway 10, Melancthon, ON L9V 2E6).

"Hey! I wasn't done yet!"

Online condolences may be made at www.imfunerals.com
